Dramatic Scenes of "The Race for Life" Are Laid in Africa

"The Race for Life," the second picture of the massive Paramount spectacle "The Mistress of the World," bears out in a remarkable manner in just what degree the natives of Africa are swayed by superstition. This picture comes to Park Theatre next Wednesday.

An incident is depicted in which King Makombe, sovereign of central Africa, seeks to invoke the aid of his witch doctor Malkalla. Even though this king has the power of life and death over his subjects, he trembles in the presence of the medicine man and when communication is established with the spirits he prostrates himself in abject terror. When a tyrannical king will do this it can readily be imagined the state of mind in which his subjects are continually kept by this fakir, who holds his sway with the help of a flame and a few harmless powders.

Then by a curious twist of fate the truth is revealed that this witch doctor is himself a slave to superstition and he loses his life in consequence—adv.

HOORAY! HOOROO! WE WIN

Rockland Polo Team, Equipped To War Strength, Beats Fall River In Wonderful Game.

The prolonged losing streak of the Rockland polo team, due entirely to the fact that it has been playing out of its class, was broken Tuesday night, when the strengthened locals took the fast Fall River aggregation across to the tune of 9 to 7. Frenzied fans who had followed the fluctuating fortunes of the contending teams through an hour of tense excitement, gave vent to a remarkable demonstration when Timmer Davies pulled the gong which marked the close, with Rockland two scores to the good. Rockland had won, at last, and it had won the hardest fought and most scientific game of the season.

The Fall River players made the long journey by automobile, leaving home at 8 o'clock in the morning, and arriving here only a short time before the game was scheduled to begin. There was nothing to indicate the tedious ordeal they had just gone through, when the Fall River players took the floor, for they started right in on "high," and never let up until the expiration of the third period.

The names of most of the Fall River players are very familiar in New England polo circles. Oldham has been on the payroll of several professional teams; Morrison has been with Lowell and Wallingford in the American Association, while A. Lovegreen was the sensational goal tend of the Woonsocket team this season. They all gave a fine account of themselves Thursday night, especially goal tend Lovegreen, whose marvelous work kept his team from being swamped at times.

The two outstanding features of this contest were its cleanliness and the never passing. There was no loud or vulgar talk, and Fall River placed itself on a par with Portland for being a gentlemanly visiting team. St. Aubin and one of the Fall River rushers nixed in a bet, once or twice, but they weren't half so excited as the average spectator.

Welch of New Bedford, who made his debut with the Rockland team in his game, signaled it by making his first two goals—then some. The crowd fell in love with him right off he had. Just what was needed was to have him working in conjunction with the clever St. Aubin, who has been his "side kick" for the past five seasons.

A good pair to draw to, and Rodney Skinner made it three of a kind, caging four of Rockland's nine goals and by being in the fray every minute. "Bitty" Wright, the right man in the right place, broke up countless drives by the enemy. It was Erskine York's first big game as goal tend, and he showed it in the early part of the game, but finished strong, and was equal to the emergency on several critical occasions.

UP-RIVER FACTORY

Stockton Springs Has Ambitions Concerning the Lawrence Canning Co. Plant.

The Stockton Springs correspondent of the Belfast Journal writes: "A movement is under way with a view to securing possession of the local plant of the Lawrence Canning Co. and packing such farm products as have a ready market and sardines when the trade situation warrants. The cannery at the foot of Middle street is well located and admirably equipped for the sardine business and can be converted to general packing at reasonable expense for further apertunances. Some years ago the town and public-spirited citizens strained several points to secure the location of the factory. There developed certain failures in a mutual agreement and disappointment resulted on both sides.

The sale of the plant to the East Coast Fisheries Co. and the outcome of the transaction has not aided materially in the prosperity of the community. Now the reorganized company will sell the plant and an opportunity is presented which would be to the substantial advantage of a town sorely in need of distributed pay-rolls. Men of unquestioned ability and wide experience are ready to handle the matter but a large part of the financing would have to come from the formation of some sort of a co-operative scheme, wherein local farmers, who would have a market for their produce, would make investments in the stock of the prospective company. With a material improvement in the sardine situation, the success of the plan would be an absolute certainty. The element of chance would be wholly removed. In the packing of farm products, transportation by motor trucks makes distance of no consequence, good roads being assured during the packing season."

This Fine Residence, Built and Occupied By Major Gen. Hiram G. Berry. Later the Home of Jonathan White, Col. John S. Case and Walter J. Rich, Was Badly Damaged By Fire Yesterday Morning.

FIRE WRECKS HISTORIC HOUSE

Residence of Walter J. Rich On White Street Nearly Destroyed Yesterday Morning—Was Once Home of Major Gen. Hiram G. Berry.

The residence of Walter J. Rich, bordering on White, Beech and Maple streets—historic as the home of its original owner, Major Gen. Hiram G. Berry, hero of Chancellorsville—was nearly destroyed by fire in the early hours of yesterday morning. That a tragedy did not also result is due to what seems to have been divine intervention.

Mrs. Rich had spent an uncomfortable day in the dentist's chair, and was awakened next morning by pain which was so annoying that she went to the bath room for medicine which would relieve it.

"I believe I smell smoke," she said to her husband, when she returned to her chamber.

Mr. Rich made an immediate investigation in the rooms adjoining the bath room. In one of them everything appeared to be all right, but when he opened the door of the maid's room, which was temporarily unoccupied, a volume of smoke and flame burst upon him.

His first act was to telephone Central Fire Station. He then shouted a lusty alarm from one of the chamber windows, but though it is a thickly settled community his outcry had no immediate results.

There was no time to save anything and with scarcely clothing enough to cover them Mr. and Mrs. Rich, and members of George C. Large's family, who also resided there quit the burning structure and passed out into the raw and chilly atmosphere of an unusually uncomfortable March morning.

The double alarm from Box 25 had the curious effect of arousing not more than a handful of people. For a long time after the fire had been in progress Mr. Rich recalls seeing only two persons outside of the department—Benjamin J. Perry and William W. Spear. In this connection regret was expressed by a number of persons yesterday over the policy by which the box number at the corner of Main and Limerock streets was changed from 12 to 25. Box 42, in the heart of the business section, always carried special significance, and a double alarm from it never failed to draw a big crowd. Box 25 does not seem to inspire the same awe, and hope is expressed that the original number may be restored.

The fire spread rapidly through the upper sections of the house, and before it was under control many tons of water had drenched the rooms below creating a scene of ruin which was in sad contrast to its handsome exterior only a few hours before.

Mr. Rich, yesterday, was unable to account for the fire's origin. Four streams were poured onto the burning structure. The firemen found their long vigil an uncomfortable one, and Chief Engineer W. S. Pettie, who was all but sick before the alarm sounded, was compelled to relinquish the task to his assistants. This he did not do, however, until the fire was well under control.

The garage, containing three automobiles, was undamaged. Across Maple street from the scene of the fire stands Knox Hospital, which was well filled with patients. There is a considerable space between the two structures, but the hospital officials were ready to take prompt action in case the menace became too great.

Mr. Rich places his loss roughly at $35,000, and is fortunate enough to be well insured. In rebuilding he plans to preserve the original architecture of the historic residence.

It is understood that Mr. and Mrs. Large had no insurance on their personal effects, which are practically a total loss. Mr. Large was in New York.

Mr. Rich and family have occupied the residence since the autumn of 1918, and the title of the property passed from Mrs. Emily C. Hitchcock to him in March, 1919.

History does not record the exact age of the house, but it is believed that it was built in 1845, at which time Gen. Berry became a contractor and builder and was married. Its builder and first owner was a foremost citizen of Rockland, its second mayor, representing it with distinction in the State Legislature where he made close acquaintance with the prominent men of his day and early in life ranking among the successful bankers and business men of the live and growing community. At the outbreak of the Civil War he organized the Fourth Maine Regiment, which as its colonel he took to the front in June, 1861. His gallantry and brilliancy in command advanced him through rapid promotions to the rank of major general, when his life of unusual promise was prematurely cut off by the minie ball of a North Carolina sharpshooter at the battle of Chancellorsville, May 3, 1863. His place of burial in Achorn cemetery is marked by a handsome marble statue, the work of the noted sculptor Franklin Simmons.

The remains of the distinguished war hero arrived in this city May 9, 1863, and lay in state at the family residence in the full uniform of his rank, on his breast the Kearney badge, and with the beautiful wreath of flowers offered by the President in Washington. The funeral was held on the 14th, Gov. Corbourn, ex-Gov. Washburn and other distinguished personages sat on the platform in front of the house during the procession and Vice President Hannibal Hamlin marched in the procession as a private in the ranks of a Bangor company to which he belonged.

Older people recall the solemnity of those days during which the martial figure of the dead warrior lay in state in the large north room, with two armed soldiers standing on guard at the door, through which filed a steady throng of visitors. On the lot facing the house, where the Public Library now stands, a company of soldiers, the guard of honor, for several days lay encamped.

The place has been the scene of many notable social events. There occurred in 1866, amid much pomp and circumstance, the double wedding of Gen. Berry's beautiful daughter, Lucy, to Alfred D. Snow of New York, and her likewise beautiful cousin Clara, daughter of John T. Berry, to Austin W. Black, also of New York, the occasion calling together the younger social life of the city in which the two brides were recognized belles, and by the famous "Rockland Brass Band" discoursing spirited music upon the lawn.

During the war a lawn fete given by the ladies of the Service Club, which the whole city attended, raised nearly a thousand dollars for local war work.

The property was purchased from Gen. Berry's widow in 1867 by Jonathan White, a noted lime manufacturer, who occupied it, together with the family of his son-in-law, Hon. John S. Case, to whose wife, on the death of Mr. and Mrs. White, it passed by inheritance. White street preserves the name of that second owner of the house. Mr. Case was for a long period of years a prominent citizen of Rockland, four times a mayor, representing it in the Legislature and active and successful in the banking and business life of the city down to the time of his death in 1903. Under the friendly roof Hannibal Hamlin, James G. Blaine, Thomas B. Reed, Eugene Hale, Nelson Dingley, Gen. Chamberlain, William Widgery Thomas (Minister to Sweden), many Governors of Maine and other public men unnumbered came as guests, enjoying the open hospitality no less than the fine and brilliant company of the gentleman who was their genial host.

MOCK TOWN MEETING

Statements of the Rockland Comrades To Be Heard at Universalist Church.

"The Band Wagon," superficial organ of the Universalist church Men's Club, discusses in the current issue the town meeting which is to be held next Monday evening after partaking of a hot roast beef supper.

There are 11 articles in the warrant and everybody will take part in the first, which is to discuss and consume one supper, for men, prepared by men. Article 8 is to see what inducement the Town will offer to a corporation which shall develop the water power of Lindsey Brook and its tributaries. Article 9 is to see if the town will recall one Charles Cables, elect him town clerk, and station him with his megaphone on Main street to keep the public posted regarding the time after daylight saving becomes effective.

And then comes two serious articles: Art. 10. To take action to prevent further destruction of church property.

Art. 11. To see if the town is in favor of appropriating a sum of money for the purpose of building immediately a new High School or remodeling the present building, and to determine how the money for said purpose shall be raised.

WILLIAM H. WAKEFIELD

In this paper several issues ago was announced the sudden death of William H. Wakefield, a former Rockland man, which took place in Merced, Calif., Feb. 19. A friend writes:

"Mr. Wakefield died while attending church with the Knights of Pythias, fraternity, of which he was a member. He had been in his usual good health, as far as his friends knew. He had been in California 15 years, and was planning to come East for a visit this summer. He was never married, and his nearest surviving relatives are two sisters, Marcia Hayden Clark and Julia C. Clark."

Mr. Wakefield spent several years in Rockland, and at one time was junior member of the firm of Sullivan & Wakefield, which conducted a stationery store. In 1895 he was associated with his sister, Marcia at the Simpson House, Owl's Head.

THE LIGHT OF STARS

The night is come, but not too soon:
And sinking silently,
All silently, the little moon
Drops down behind the sky.

There is no light in earth or heaven
But the cold light of stars;
And the first watch of night is given
To the red planet Mars.

Is it the tender star of love?
The star of love and dreams?
O no! from that blue tent above,
A hero's armor gleams.

And earnest thought within me rises,
When I behold afar,
Suspended in the evening skies,
The shield of that red star.

O star of strength! I see thee stand
And smile upon my pain;
Thou beckonest with thy mailed hand,
And I am strong again.

Within my breast there is no light
But the cold light of stars;
I give the first watch of the night
To the red planet Mars.

The star of the unconquered will,
He rises in my breast,
Sere, and resolute, and still,
And calm, and self-possessed.

And thou, too, whose'er thou art,
That readest this brief psalm,
As one by one thy hopes depart,
Be resolute and calm.

O fear not in a world like this,
And thou shalt know ere long,
Know how sublime a thing it is
To suffer and be strong.

Communication by wireless between Rockland and isolated Swan's Island will be established next Wednesday, when the big radio station built at Rockland Highlands a few years ago, for the East Coast Fisheries Company, will again be placed in commission by Walter C. Bay and Fred A. Lange. Mr. Bay was manager of the station under the East Coast regime, and it did a large volume of ship to shore business. Mr. Bay had a very interesting career in the radio service during the war, and since the fisheries company discontinued its service has made several trips abroad as radio operator on large steamships. Mr. Lange is also an expert radio operator. The young men have applied for the necessary license to do a general commercial business, and will, in due season, furnish wireless telephone service when there are events of public interest. The regular operating hours will be from 7 a. m. to 9 p. m.

At a meeting of the financial committee which is looking after American Legion interests, it was definitely decided Thursday night to issue 4000 to cover the cost of the old Y. M. C. A. property as a new home. The sale of bonds is to start April 5 and they are to be of $100, $50 and $25 denominations. Among those who might not be able to buy the larger bonds, certificates at the same rate of interest for $10, $15 and $20 will be offered for sale. These certificates will be covered by coupon bonds held back as securities. The drive will be furthered by members of the legion and the auxiliary.

Lieut. Tyler W. Spear, U. S. N., who is attached to the flagship Wright of the air squadron of the U. S. Atlantic Fleet wrote from Key West under date of March 14 that he was leaving that afternoon for a month's stay at Guantanamo, Cuba, before proceeding to Philadelphia. "While you people are having snow in Maine, we are having weather around 90 in the shade, and it seems strange to discard overcoats in March for white uniforms." The Courier-Gazette has in hand a letter from Lieut. Spear which will be published in Tuesday's issue.

The second State contest for young professional musicians will be held in Portland April 25, under the auspices of the Maine Federation of Music Clubs. The purposes of the contest are: a, to recognize the superior ability of American Music Teachers by bringing their pupils into prominence; b, to encourage and inspire music students to greater effort in artistic achievement; c, to give opportunity and publicity to the most talented young musicians of America, and to launch them upon a professional career.

Mrs. A. Tribou, who spends most of her time on the end of Rockland Breakwater with her husband, the keeper of the light, brought into The Courier-Gazette office Thursday noon a yellow butterfly that she had seen resting on a stump at the corner of Rankin and Main streets. Premature as was the March appearance of the little chap, it seemed to be lively and as happy as most butterflies appear to be.

The long looked for moving pictures of Princess Mary's wedding in London are contained in the International News, which will be shown at Park Theatre next Monday. DRIVE FOR MEMBERS

Read This and See Why You Should Join Public Health Association.

At the sessions of the Knox County Public Health Association, Thursday at the office of the president, Frank H. Ingraham, it was decided to make a drive for increased membership and the secretary Mrs. Edith C. Beverage, and others were authorized to solicit memberships. Immediate action will be taken in Rockland and a little later concerted efforts will be made throughout the county. The membership fee is $1 a year and "the whole dollar stays in the county." Fifteen cents additional entitles one to a year's subscription to the "Maine Public Health Association News," a monthly publication.

Contributions from friends of the County Association, for carrying on the work in the county will be much appreciated at this time and full information as to the work being done and to be done can be obtained from the president and secretary, or by telephoning 468.

As more people become familiar with the work that is being done by the Public Health Nurse in the county the more friends the Association has, and its affiliation with the State Association, which, in turn is affiliated with the National Association, insures its stability and development along progressive lines. Knox county is fortunate in having a full time public health nurse, whose services are available to every town in the county as well as the city of Rockland, in all the lines of public health work. While educational and preventive measures are in some respects new to our people, they are beginning to appreciate that it is easier to "keep well" than it is to get well, after one is sick and the public health nurse is ready at all times to give information and help all to do those things that will prevent disease and to check disease if contracted.

The work done in the schools is of inestimable value to the children and many whose parents have suspected ear, eye and throat or other troubles have found by following up the nurse's suggestion to consult physicians, oculists or dentists, that their children had been handicapped by troubles of these descriptions. The anti-tuberculosis work is but one of the many lines in which the nurse is engaged, as well, while emergency cases of sickness or accidents frequently demand her attention and child welfare work, pre-natal advice, etc., make further demands upon her time. The Association has now furnished its nurse with scales, so that pupils in the schools can be weighed at proper intervals and the weight record kept and compared is often the first evidence of impaired health.

At the evening session Miss Hazel Bryant, superintendent at the Silsby Hospital and Dr. William Ellingwood, spoke interestingly of the work of the nurse particularly as touching their lines of work. Thomaston is the only town in the county that has "woken up" to a full realization of what the service of a public health nurse means to a community and the five wives of that place have pledged $25 a month for carrying on the good work. About $200 a month is needed. It is said that those in the cities are healthier than those in rural communities, now because the people in cities through preventative up-to-date means keep well. May the Knox county rural communities, if this statement is true, take advantage of our Public Health Association and its nurse's services and learn how to keep well.

SPRING PATTERNS OF LINOLEUMS HAVE ARRIVED

IS IT A FAILURE?

See What the Union Signal Has To Say About Prohibition.

The pro-liquor press says that prohibition is a failure. What are the real facts? asks the Union Signal, which offers the following exhibits:

1. Two years of national prohibition has reduced the number of drinkers of alcoholic beverages from 20,000,000 to 2,500,000, a decrease of 17,500,000, says Federal Prohibition Commissioner Haynes.

2. Only 15 per cent of former drinkers are drinking now and these are drinking but five per cent the quantity of liquor that was formerly consumed says Federal Prohibition Commissioner Haynes.

3. The same authority states that the entire drink bill of the nation has decreased $2,000,000,000 a year. This money formerly spent for drink has gone into savings banks or has been spent in legitimate lines for necessary commodities.

4. The year 1921, the second of the prohibition regime, was the healthiest in the United States, according to figures submitted by thirty-seven leading insurance companies transacting about 80 per cent of the life insurance business of the country.

5. The Federal Comptroller of the Currency is authority for the statement that more than 600 mutual savings banks show gains both in number of depositors and volume of deposits during the last fiscal year. Prominent banks in every section of the country testify that prohibition has promoted the thrift movement as shown by the increased savings.

6. Judge Kent Greene, president of the Washingtonian Home Association, the oldest operating association of its kind in America, is reported to have said that the Chicago home is the only one out of sixty or more in the country to survive and that its slim patronage makes its future doubtful.

7. The report of the Board of Charities of the District of Columbia for the fiscal year shows a continued decline in the population of the workhouse and other correctional and reform institutions. The chairman of the committee on Reformatories and others, says: "The most encouraging fact to be noted in connection with the workhouse is that during the past year, the daily average of prisoners was only 208 as compared with 334 the preceding year. This is the lowest number recorded since the establishment of the new workhouse at Occoquan, eleven years ago."

How much are YOU Using Your Bank ???

Many men are unaware of the various ways a large bank, with a sincere desire to help its depositors, can be of service to them.

Does your bank, for instance—

- 1 Help you choose good investments and endeavor to keep your holdings at maximum earning power?
- 2 Keep your securities and collect the income?
- 3 Make your vacation and travel abroad easier and more enjoyable.
- 4 Help you plan the protection of your estate for the benefit of your family?
- 5 Give you the advantages of its knowledge and experience gained from contact with practically every type of business?

These are some of the things we are doing for our depositors, and we believe that you would find your association with us similarly helpful and profitable.

Glen F. Miles of 72 Camden street has received a beautiful bronze medal from the State of Oregon, in recognition of the service he performed while serving from the State of Oregon in the armed forces of the United States during the World War. Since then he has been employed as electrician by the Central Maine Power Co.

A 5-year old kid, with tear begrimmed countenance, yelling lustily with a pair of 100 per cent lungs, aroused The Brook's sympathies early last evening. His bare hands were pitifully cold, and when ushered into The Courier-Gazette office he hugged the warm radiator with the affection that would be bestowed upon a dear relative. Under the influence and the kindly questioning of Rev. W. S. Rounds it developed that he was lost. His audience could not quite interpret the name, but he seemed possessed of the notion that he lived at 49 Willow street, and thither he was taken on the broad shoulders of Patrolman E. U. Price. He had scarcely disappeared when the boy's father, Benjamin Hallett, appeared in this office with the information that he had been searching the city for the youngster. Mr. Hallett, it appears, had moved that day from 634 1/2 Main street to 12 Rankin street, and it is not surprising that the little shaver had gone astray. Eventually there was a happy reunion.

The Universalist church Sunday evening picture series is giving to-morrow evening that popular New York play, "Only 38." The play centers around a minister's family in a small town, and is concerned with two children and a grandfather who spend their time trying to persuade the mother, who is a minister's widow, to disregard the customs and conventions of the day. Mary Ryan takes the leading part.

Active times with the Universalist folk next week. Listen: Monday evening the Men's Club has a supper and meeting. Tuesday afternoon the ladies' society gives an Easter auction party at the Copper Kettle. Wednesday comes the regular circle supper at 6:30. The Boy Scouts and Junior Scouts are on hikes today, and are planning an interesting program for the summer months which will include a number of camping trips.

H. E. Dunnack, State Librarian, will lecture in the First Baptist church, Wednesday evening, under the auspices of the Methuen Club. One-half of the proceeds will be given to the Public Library for use in the children's room. Considering the fact that the subject of Mr. Dunnack's lecture, "The Basis of Success in Business and Life," will be a very helpful and instructive subject for the High School students to hear, the club has decided to make the tickets for them half-price. The committee is very much pleased with the way the tickets are selling, and asks a continuance of this loyal support from the public. If the members of the committee pass anyone by in their sale of tickets, please do not take this as an excuse to stay at home, for tickets will be on sale at the door the evening of the lecture.

Portland Press Herald: Two beam trawlers arrived here Wednesday, each having about 175,000 pounds of fish, mostly haddock, for the Burnham & Morrill factory. But few fish were received by the wholesale dealers, outside of the fares landed by the boat fishermen, some of the schooners that came in on Tuesday going to Boston to sell, expecting to do better there. Prices ruled low on Wednesday, the dealers paying the fishermen out of the boats 1 1/2 to 3 cents for haddock, 1 cent for cusk, and 2 to 3 cents for hake. Lobsters are still higher, the dealers paying 55 cents a pound live weight, but this will last for only a few days longer, as supplies are now coming from Nova Scotia, about 250 crates having been received at Boston on Tuesday from Yarmouth.

The latest bulletin from Lancelot and Elaine, the gold fish which are being chaperoned by the cub reporter, is to the effect that both will probably survive the turmoil of their new quarters in Neil Perry's busy domain. Making on an average 300 revolutions an hour on the inside of the glass globe, they have worn most of the gold off their backs, but apparently they appreciate the experimental diet furnished by the cub reporter, which diet seems to have more components than restaurant hash.

The Atlas Club of the American School of Osteopathy, Kirksville, Mo., recently gave its annual minstrel show, and judging from the newspaper reports, kindly sent to us by Mrs. A. H. Harmon (Nellie Cables) it must have been a most enjoyable entertainment. In the Atlas Club are 12 Maine men, and among those participating in the minstrel show were Edwin Scariott of Rockland and A. Herbert Harmon of Springvale, husband of Nellie Cables. "The Courier-Gazette" is always looked forward to," writes Mrs. Harmon, "as it keeps us in touch with home, sweet home. It is really surprising in a town way out here to know how many Courier-Gazette's are read, but please never forget my copy, as I should feel lost without it."

The Apron Committee working for the Congregational fair will give a circle supper at the regular price next Wednesday at 6:30. In connection with the supper there will be a sale of aprons, cake and candy.—adv.

BEATING ALL COMERS

Rockland Girls Initiate Hallows Cousins Into Mysteries of Basketball.

William J. Bryan gained fame as a Presidential candidate by his advocacy of 16 to 1. William J. was only a piker beside the Rockland High School Girls' basketball team, which last night defeated Hallowell High 40 to 1, and which, in the course of 10 previous victories had beaten Camden High 65 to 1 and Lincoln Academy 38 to 1. The only team in Maine which has scored more than two points against this female avalanche is the Maine School of Commerce, which somehow got five. We repeat, William J. Bryan was only a piker.

Last night's outcome was never in doubt. Sullivan's Sextette played like an orchestra which never sounds a false note, and every girl deserves credit. With the visitors came the principal of the school, John S. Carver, formerly of Camden High. Cony High, which also claims the State title, beat Hallowell only 15 to 8. Negotiations are now being made for a game between Rockland High and Cony High. Last night's summary:

The usual banquet will be served at 6:00, after which the gathering will be addressed by Dr. J. M. Gage, divisional secretary of the New England Area, on the work of the Centenary. Dr. Gage has been connected with this work from the beginning, and it is doubtful if any man in New England is better informed as to the work than he is. Do not miss the banquet and address. Wednesday night will witness the closing of the campaign in which the church will again repeat the record of other years, and will again go over the top. Let each member and worker find their place in this program and fill it to the limit. It is worth while.

Miss Lena Crawford delightfully entertained the Literary Club Thursday evening at a delicious supper. Coffee (tubercular) being served, the guests rather hesitated in taking the beverage but it proved a delicious drink. Miss Cooe a Chinese student at Wadsworth is spending her Easter vacation in town was the guest of honor. We were surprised at the little lady knowing so many of our old time songs. She has a sweet soprano voice but not much volume. The evening came very near having a fatal end for two of its members. One being a suicide and the other one very nearly being cremated. There were pills in abundance.

A very pretty party was given by Misses Grace Daggett and Shirley Doherty at the former's home Tuesday evening, March 14. The room in which the guests danced was daintily trimmed in red, which was the work of "Sunny" and Grace. The special events of the evening was the singing by "Skeet" O'Brien and Miss Irene Curtis; the exciting peanut hunt, which resulted in Mildred Gay and Irene Curtis being the star finders; the mysterious disappearance of one of the guests, which so alarmed the hostess "Sunny" that she ran to a nearby wireless station to send an S. O. S. call for him. When last seen, it is said he wore a very gloomy expression. The bright lights proved to be too much for "Skeet's" eyes, so he gained permission from one of the chaperons to have moonlight dances. The guests arrived about 7.30, and departed at about 12 o'clock. A very pretty exhibition of dancing was given at the close of the party by "Sunny" and "Skeet." Those present were Misses Mildred Gay, Irene Curtis, Alice Robshaw, Grace Daggett, Shirley Doherty, Mr. and Mrs. Doherty, Mrs. Robshaw, "Skeet" O'Brien, James Thornton, Willis Lufkin, Archie Huntley, George Dyer, Everett Oney, Bert Curtis, Mrs. Doherty and Mrs. Robshaw were the chaperons. "April showers" will follow. The guest of honor had no sooner arrived and was comfortably seated than she was forced to start on a "journey." "On the string for a while" was the slogan. At each station she found a verse suitable for the occasion, but which required courage to read aloud. Her sixth station was a tastefully decorated dining room with a large table of beautiful gifts, for her future use. Over the center of the table hung a large wedding bell, while

The Courier-Gazette's desire (in the interest of fair play) to hear Camden's side of the Camden-Rockport basketball controversy, was gratified last night by Coach Bresenham of the Camden team who was in the city to referee the girls' basketball games. "I am sorry that it has to be a matter of public discussion," said Mr. Bresenham, but so long as an official statement has been given out from Rockport it is only fair that patrons of the game should know our side of the story.

"On the afternoon before the unfinished game I called Principal Burns of Rockport by telephone and asked to have W. J. Sullivan of Rockland, a neutral official, referee the game. He refused even after I had reminded him that Lincoln Academy's request for a neutral official had been granted. He said that Wadsworth had been permitted to referee in Camden, but I told him that there had been no objection to Wadsworth.

"I did not consider that Payson, a Rockport post-graduate was capable of handling the game as he had not had sufficient experience. The Camden boys did not want him, but consented to start the game, which proved a regular rough-house, and over which Payson had no more control than a spectator. He called fouls on Camden repeatedly, and hardly any on Rockport. Stevenson was out of the game 10 minutes, laid out cold. That it was done deliberately I do not care to say, but he is still suffering from the effects of his injuries.

"While we were standing apart on the floor, deciding whether we should continue the game, Rockport continued to play and made three goals, which, however, were not allowed. The real score stood 8 to 6 in favor of Rockport when one-quarter and seven minutes on the second quarter had been played.

"The Camden players had just returned from the University of Maine tournament where the rules were very strictly enforced, and were lost when they encountered Rockport's tactics. I had three football players. I could have put into the game if we desired that kind of play. I shall lay the whole matter before the governing council in Thomaston and shall be content to abide by its decision.

Avoid Being Irritated.
Some folks are just plain irritated. You don't know why it is you don't like them. But you surely don't like them. By word and deed they get under your skin and you feel mean at being so touchy. But it can't be helped—they irritate. Do your best to get beyond the irritation stage. You can put up with a lot when you train yourself to it. In the end you may find that part of the irritation belongs to yourself. Come on. Be a sport. Buck up.—Grit.

THE PRATTLER

XL

We were walking along Main street between W. O. Hewett Co.'s and Burpee & Lamb's and were thinking derogatory thoughts with reference to the general sloppiness of the crossing, the amount of ingenuity and labor to be expended that would permit one to traverse dry shod from curb to curb and several other thoughts of a dark and uncomplimentary nature. Sam Burpee was standing by the corner of his store gazing across into the cool green depths of the trout pool in the window of the Thomas Sporting Goods Company and doubtless thinking what an ideal day it was to go fishing. As above alluded to, we were thinking chiefly about mud and sloppy crossings. Perhaps it might be nice if an individual ferry boat affair was rigged at that particular crossing, thus enabling one to draw one's self dry shod across the street by means of a pulley arrangement on a wire, we said to Mr. Burpee in an attempt at being facetious. Or perhaps a pair of stilts might be left by the city on each side. Sir Walter Raleigh's spring overcoat would indeed have been a sad appearing affair if he could have had occasion to escort a lady from Hewett's to Burpee & Lamb's. At all events there was little question in our mind but that the crossing was in the worst shape of its existence. "Say! Look here," said Sam Burpee, "come over here, young man, and I'll tell you something that I guess you never heard about."

And that is how we happened to get the subject matter for the rest of this column.

Years ago, before the time of paving blocks, in the day of heavy limerock teams, Main street was a veritable quagmire of liquid mud in the spring, that made the crossing of it a most venturesome and precarious performance. Except for the occasional foot passenger, the crossing was a fearful and frightful pedestrian conditions along Main street before the paving blocks went down and when from the South end to the North end it was a quivering mass of unjellied jelly. Mr. Burpee can recall the use of wooden hoe-like instruments known as "pushers" that were kept at both ends of the crossing. When it was absolutely essential for one to cross over, a pusher could be used to great advantage to push a river of mud before one on the crossing. Needless to say people did not cross over except in the event of pressing necessity. In the case of a lady, some gallant male might seize a horse and if the lady in distress followed gingerly in the wake of the gallant one and the pusher, she might be able to get over before the mud oozed back over the crossing.

An incident which will probably be forever associated with the soupy era of Main street annals, is the memorable ride of "Doc" Combs, mail carrier, philosopher and comedian extraordinary. George, or rather "Doc" Combs, as he was known, was a wide territory, used to carry the mail from South Thomaston to Rockland. He must have been a born press agent, for there is no doubt but what he hit upon the most spectacular and versatile method for gaining free publicity of anybody who has ever ridden the streets of Rockland before or since. "Doc" did not think very highly of the traveling conditions along Main street. One beautiful spring day he had consumed a practical joke that had been mulling in his ingenious brain for some time, that was destined to place him in the public limelight of a far greater radius than that of Knox county, and that was not without a subtle and satirical application to the department of street cleaning. On this particular spring day everybody who was within doors along Main street heard a roar of cheers and general commotion without that prompted them to dash to the door. Plunging down Main street through a sea of liquid mud was a dory drawn by the horse that generally hauled the South Thomaston stage. Clad in sou'wester and oilskins, peering in determined fashion straight ahead with not a vestige of a smile on his face, "Doc" Combs stood aft gripping the reins. From the stern there flew an American flag and forward there fluttered in the breeze a United States mail flag. The horse was raised a yard or two from the ground, at about the height of the whistle tree. With a frequently cracking whip and a dogged countenance, that could not have presented a more serious aspect had its owner been carrying a message to a king, the skipper stood aft and drove the weird craft at a lively clip through the knee deep mud. The entire distance from South Thomaston to Rockland did the mud splattered animal proceed between a wildly cheering and delirious throng of spectators.

Several days thereafter, True P. Pierce, a well known lawyer, rendered in the Hotel Thorndike an appropriate and eloquent oratorical tribute to the intrepid stage driver and the bold passage of the mail boat. A collection was taken up among the delighted hearers and the dauntless and ingenious "Doc" was presented with a tall silk hat and a pair of riding gloves. Upon accepting these marks of appreciation and gratitude, he made a very witty and spontaneous retort in nautical phraseology, in which he described in vivid style the rigors of his passage, and his great joy at eventually making the home port. The exploit is said to have received wide publicity and a picture of the mud drenched craft appeared in Frank Leslie's Weekly.

"So you think that's a muddy stretch across there do you, son?" went on Sam Burpee. "Look here, my boy, you never saw any mud! Right there in the exact spot where you crossed over there used to be about two feet of mud that was just like pudding, one time I had a pair of long boots that I didn't care anything about, so I thought I'd give the folks along the street a little start. Right there between Hewett's and my store I poked 'em into the mud, soles up. Somebody else along the street carried the joke a little further by throwing an old hat by their side and it looked for all the world as though somebody had dived over and was all under except the bottoms of his feet and hat. Those feet sticking up there had quite a striking effect and there was more than one person that got the thrill of his life. It would be impossible to get much of an idea of the frightful conditions that we had to put up with in the old days of limerock teams and no paving stones. Mud! Well, I guess!"

THE ABANDONED FARM

Benjamin F. Smith's Suggestion To Gov. Baxter Offers the Contentment of the Simple Life.

What to do with Maine's abandoned farms formed the basis of an interesting suggestion to Gov. Baxter, made recently by the venerable Benjamin F. Smith of Warrenton, who is spending the winter in Omaha. An elaboration of those views is contained in the following letter received by one of the nonagenarian's neighbors.

Maine's location, outside the trend of travel of the incoming foreign immigration, filling up the vacant and rich farming lands of the Middle West, added nothing to Maine's population; on the contrary caused her own boys and girls arriving at maturity to become imbued with the spirit of adventure, and a desire to see for themselves the outside world's attractions and opportunities.

Then the boys and girls left the farms, and in large numbers to seek their fortunes, none coming in to fill their places. In course of time the "old folks" died and the windows of the house were boarded up—the farm practically abandoned. It has been estimated that at the present time there are 13,000 of such abandoned farms in Maine alone, which can be seen when traveling through the farming districts, no income of any importance being derived from them by the present owners, and farm houses and fences and other improvements going to decay—and Maine as a State a great loser.

The attraction of the villages and cities, with their main streets brilliantly lighted, moving pictures, and dance halls, has huddled together masses of the younger life seeking enjoyment and recreation that fill all vacant tenement houses, and the young man and wife find a tiny apartment with a kitchenette the only place they can call home. To pay the rent and meet the bills is a draft upon their salaries or incomes that makes it impossible to accumulate anything for a rainy day. Such conditions preclude possibility of a real wholesome life. It is merely existence.

What can be done to help those wanting a way pointed out to help themselves to a normal life, giving contentment to themselves and their children? Cheap lands in the great expansive West are not to be had, $100 to $200 per acre for good farming lands being the prevailing prices now demanded. This means a small fortune to be invested to make a start at Western farming, while here in Maine these abandoned farms—good lands—producing good and valuable crops of all kinds of vegetables required by the home market at good prices usually—these Maine farms have gone to sleep—waiting for young men with their helpful wives to come and occupy them.

To help do this the State must lend a hand. Secure a 10 years' option to purchase at a price. Secure a chart of all such lands, of which the Maine Agricultural College will furnish all information needed about how and what best to cultivate successfully. Call the attention of these young men and their wives to the desirability of leaving the town apartment and to make a new start in life on a Maine farm, the State advancing to them small loans to clear up and make necessary repairs to the old buildings usually to be found on such farms, to make them liveable; also money for farming tools and implements. Yes, and for a cow, some chickens, a pig or two and a farm horse and other things necessary to make a start, to get the foothold. The young man and his wife are asked to come and look over the State chart, and make a selection as to where they would like to go to live and make their future home, giving them the promise, with contract, that if they made good they would get a deed of the farm at the option the State would hold to buy.

The State being convinced, the option to purchase secured, Dick and Alice were invited to examine and select a location where they would like to live. This done repairs and a general cleanup made, Dick and Alice moved their effects from the little apartment and kitchenette, purchased a few other necessities and moved all up to the farm house where Dick had a good open woodpile going in the ample fireplace in the kitchen stove, and when Alice walked in with her two little children, looked around the ample room exclaimed: "Dick this is lovely. What a change! All to be our own home. All the money we have been wasting on moving pictures and the alluring bright lights we are going to save up to pay the State for this farm. All to be our own, and all the work we do is for our own selves, our own home, and our own dear little children will have the freedom of air and sunlight and all out doors for a playground. Dick isn't this lovely? A home all our own and I am going to learn to cook as our grandmothers did when their food tasted so good, and when you are up and around soon after daylight doing the outside work and chores I will be up early, too, and cook you such a nice breakfast. I will set the table up before the open fire and while you and the children are seated pull the roasted potatoes out of the ashes, brush them off and put them beside your plate, and give you some good fried salt pork and hot biscuit that I have made, and with a fine cup of tea and cream won't we have a happy and delicious breakfast. All in our own home, and these dear little children will be so happy. Dick, what a new life! Just beginning to live. I wish we could live forever."

"Alice you are a wonder. I never before knew what a treasure you were. The sweetest girl on earth."

Dick and Alice were equal to the work before them. Daylight working hours were all too short. They loved to work and see the results, all for themselves and the dear little children. Dick ploughed the field, planted the crops abundantly of potatoes, turnips, beets, onion, parsnips, cabbage, corn, squash, pumpkins, and other vegetables. When the fall came he filled his cellar with them for the winter. The pigs had grown to hogs, and when Christmas killing time came the pork barrel was filled, the ham smoked. Alice helped to make some fine real country sausage, flavored with sage grown in the garden—such as grandmother used to make, and so good. Dick helped up the firewood from the wood lot for winter use. Thus they were prepared with all necessary comforts for their first winter home on the country farm.

Other young men and their wives soon came, took up other farms, and in due time the old abandoned farm, so long gone to sleep, began to awaken with new life. The voice of children and all the delights that go with farm life and a home of their own for the dear children reappearing the waste places. The State began to realize that it had a new asset. So important and so vital to hold the position of the dear old State of Maine in the van of the minds and hearts of those native to the soil but who have been wandering far afield.

Spring Medicine

Now Needed to Purify Your Blood and Build Up Your Strength.

Few come to these trying spring days without weariness, debility, that "tired feeling," caused in large part by impure, de-vitalized, or thin, watery blood.

Change of season often "takes all the strength out of me," as many people say.

The tonic and blood purifier needed is Hood's Sarsaparilla. It quickly dispels that exhausted feeling, enriches the blood and benefits the nervous, muscular and digestive systems. In a word, says a druggist, "Hood's Sarsaparilla is our most dependable restorative."

Only the best tonic and purifying ingredients used—roots, herbs, barks and berries, such as physicians often prescribe. Nearly 50 years of successful use. It will do you good. Try it this spring.

A mild laxative, Hood's Pills.

PARK THEATRE

Admirers of Wallace Reid mustn't miss him today in "The World's Champion," the hero is the battling son of a meek, nobility-worshipping British commoner. There are three hectic encounters—the first when the son pays informal court to a lady and daughter of the nobility and is attacked for his forwardness by her escort, Lord Brockington, and thrashed; the second, a ring bout wherein the hero wins the middleweight championship while in America and the third battle with Lord Brockington in which the now trained fighter returns him a dose of his own medicine. Mr. Reid is in his usual good form as an overmaker and the picture is not lacking in romance.

"White Hands," a vivid story of the great Sahara Desert and the romantic North African coast will be offered Monday. It is a thrilling tale of adventure in the African sands, having to do with "Hurricane" Hardy, the tyrannical captain of a trade schooner. He encounters the last white survivor of a missionary band in the desert and with the cunning of a snake he plans to take the girl as his own. But Fate takes a hand and guides the girl to safety and also brings about Hardy's regeneration.

Gloria Swanson in "Her Husband's Trademark," is the Tuesday offering. The trademark in this case, is a brown-recessed-dressed wife. The husband is not wealthy, but hopes to attain wealth by making a show of wealth. However, a mutual friend of both husband and wife, returns after gaining wealth and greatness, falls in love with the wife, and the husband, to promote selfish, financial ends, rather encourages the romance. The situation culminates in a very powerful climax in Mexico where, after a thrilling fight with bandits the husband is killed and the two lovers find the triumph of their righteous unselfish love.—adv.
